CLEMENT L. VALLANDIGHAM.

Vallandigham died! He died from the effects of a pistol shot accidentally discharged by himself while giving his version of the manner in which Thomas Myers was shot at Hamilton, Ohio, some three or four months ago. Vallandigham was counsel for Thomas McGowan, who was being tried at Lebanon, Ohio, for shooting Myers, and, on last Friday night, while reviewing with his associate counsel, the case as he intended to present it to the jury on the following day, he put a pistol in his pocket and drew it forth again in such a manner as to cause it to be discharged and inflict the wound that ended his life. He supposed the pistol he put in his pocket, and so carelessly discharged, was unloaded, but did not take the precaution to examine it. It was in evidence in the trial of McGowan that Myers had a loaded pistol in his pocket at the time of the melee in which he was shot, and that he drew it forth and discharged several shots from it; and Vallandigham, as counsel for McGowan, conceived that Myers shot himself just in the manner that he so successfully demonstrated that a man was liable to shoot himself. Mr. Vallandigham lived until the next morning at about 9 o'clock, retaining his mind to the last, and evidencing by his composure and peace of mind that he had no fears relative to his future destiny. His only son, aged sixteen years, and McGowan, the man in whose cause he lost his life, and many friends surrounded his death-bed. His wife did not get to see him until after life had departed, she being absent from home attending the funeral of her brother, Hon. John V. L. McMahon, of Cumberland, Md. The funeral of Mr. Vallandigham occurred on Tuesday, at Dayton, and was probably the most numerous attended that ever occurred in Ohio.

Mr. Vallandigham was born at New Lisbon, Ohio, on the 29th of July, 1823, and was a descendant from French Huguenots on his paternal side, and from Scotch Irish stock on his maternal side. He was admitted to the bar in 1842, and in 1845 was elected Representative in the State Legislature from Columbiana county. He was re-elected in 1846. In 1847, he moved to Dayton and became editor of the Enquirer, a weekly Democratic paper, which position he relinquished in about two years to resume the regular practice of his profession. In 1852 and in 1854, he ran against Lew. D. Campbell for Congress and was defeated both times. In 1855 he again ran against Campbell for Congress, and although Campbell got the certificate of election, Vallandigham contested the election, ousted Campbell, and in May, 1858, took his seat for the first time in the National Congress. He was re-elected in 1858 and in 1860, but was beaten by Robert C. Schenck in 1862. In 1863 he was arrested by order of General Burnside, sent South, went from there to Canada, and while on exile in Canada was nominated by the Democrats for Governor. He was beaten, however, by John Brough, Republican candidate, by over one hundred thousand majority. In 1864 and in 1868 he attended the National Democratic Conventions, and was very influential in both of them. In 1868 he ran against Schenck for Congress in the Dayton District, and was beaten only 475 votes. In 1867-68 he was a candidate for United States Senator before the Democratic Legislature, but was beaten by Judge A. G. Thurman. From the time of this Senatorial canvass up to the holding of the late Democratic State Convention, Mr. Vallandigham took little part in politics. In the late Democratic State Convention Mr. Vallandigham was the ruling spirit, and the conceptions of his mind made a complete summation in the principles and policy of the Democratic party.

Republican County Convention.

The Republicans of Morgan county meet in Convention to-morrow, in the Town Hall of McConnellville, for the purpose of nominating a County Ticket. "Who will be nominated?" is a question that has been asked and discussed frequently and freely for two weeks past. From what we can gather from the following is the position of affairs at this writing, Thursday morning:

For Representative, the prominent candidates are Hon. Richard Stanton and Isaiah Kennison. Stanton is the old incumbent, and his friends are urging him with a great deal of pertinacity. The main difficulty in Stanton's road is the fact that two years ago he accepted the nomination only at the urgent solicitation of the Prohibition element of this vicinity, and avowed at the time that he "would rather receive thirty votes as a Prohibition candidate than be elected as a Republican." This does not go down well with many Republicans. Kennison, on the other hand, is considered too much of a "Liquor man" by many Republicans, and is charged with having voted the Democratic ticket at the last Spring election, although we do not know for certain. We would not be surprised if the Convention refuses to nominate both of these more prominent candidates, and rather think the nominee will become such man as James K. Jones, of Morgan, or Thomas J. Williams, of Marion, both of whom are being urged privately by their friends.

For Auditor, James B. McGraw, Finley Ryan, and Arthur Pond are the candidates, and it is exceedingly doubtful which of the three will be able to develop the most strength. McGraw is popular because of his having shown himself to be a very competent officer, but he is unpopular amongst others because of the disposition of his friends to make him Auditor for life. Another thing that is operating against McGraw is the double bar he played relative to Prohibition two years ago. He was one of the first to join a Prohibition Club in Morgan county, and after doing so, and thereby pledging himself and inducing others to pledge themselves to vote the Prohibition State ticket in 1869, he went to the polls and voted an open Republican ticket; and, on being charged with this double dealing one year afterward, he denied it in toto until the paper was produced bearing his signature and binding him to vote for the Prohibition cause and ticket. Ryan, on the other hand, has considerable strength in the fact that he is a competent and worthy man, and has been promised the candidacy time and again by the Republican party. Pond's strength is not to be sneezed at either, and he should not be surprised if he is nominated.

For Clerk of the Court of Common Pleas, Cyrus M. Roberts, the present incumbent, is the only candidate before the Convention we have heard of, although it has been intimated that he will find great opposition in the Convention. Roberts is not so discredited as he should be, and has left fall utterances frequently that condemn him in the minds of many; such, for instance, as that he "would be a Prohibitionist if his bread and butter did not lie with the Republican party." Honest Republicans, and we believe there are many such, find such hard to swallow, and we should not be surprised if Roberts is thrown overboard.

For Sheriff, A. D. Havener, the present incumbent, and J. Q. White are the candidates. Havener was the Anti-Pike, or People's candidate two years ago and beat White, the regular Republican nominee. There will be considerable of a contest for this nomination, and we should not be surprised if someone, one not now thought of, would get it.

We do not know who are talked of for the minor positions on the ticket for Commissioner, Surveyor, Infirmary Director and Coroner.

Governor, Jacob Mitchell, of Cleveland; Auditor of State, Dr. James Williams, of Columbus; State Treasurer, Isaac Welch, of Belmont county; Judge of Supreme Court, Wm. H. West, of Belmont; Attorney General, Gen. F. B. Ford, of Morgan county; Clerk of Supreme Court, John Redden, of Clermont county; State School Commissioner, Thomas W. Harvey, of Lake county; Member of Board of Public Works, S. R. Houser, of Zanesville.

ATTEMPTED MURDER OF THE PRESIDENT. Created among farmers by the use of the "Cutter," as shown by the numerous testimonies received, we were hardly prepared for the following sent us by one of our Ohio patrons: "Of all the Mowers East or West, The Clipper wins the farmer's best; It is the lightest, neatest one Of all the region 'neath the sun. Of all the mowers in the field, This one with ease the harvest wins. And when it cuts the golden blade, It leaves the grass and weeds behind. It clips the grass, it clips the grain, It clips the hillsides and the plain; It clips around the stumps and trees, And does it all with greatest ease. It clips expense, it clips the toil; It clips the burden from the soil; And spreads the new mowed fields to share. It is the Clipper, stripping all, Lodged or standing, short or tall. Farmers, if you only try it, Without a doubt you'll want to buy it. Now we add but one line more The Clipper for sale at Janeway's Store, No. 108 Bell Street, Malta, Ohio."

OBITUARY.

CLARK.—Mrs. Jane Hopkins Clark, wife of Dr. John C. Clark, of Morgan co., O., died May 17th, 1871, in the 42nd year of her age. The subject of this obituary, Mrs. Jane Hopkins Clark, daughter of William and Ann Hopkins, (Episcopalians in religious tenets), was born in St. Clairsville, October, 1829. In 1851 the family moved to Zanesville, Ohio, and on the 4th of November, 1847, she became united in marriage to Dr. J. C. Clark, of Morgan county, Ohio. Their matrimonial union proved unusually affectionate and harmonious. Her chief care was the honor and happiness of her husband and the peace and order of her household. No exertions seemed to her to render every condition attractive to the comfort of her home. The true Christian spirit seemed to pervade her every act, often assisting her husband in his professional avocations. Her husband, however, to relieve the sufferings of the afflicted, her genial and affectionate nature was highly prized by a noble and generous heart, who could appreciate such moral qualities. Kindness, truth and justice were the ruling elements in her soul, for her heart knew no guile; and, after many years spent in the bosom of an adoring family, her soul, with her "spiritual body," passed the realm of mortality, May 17th, 1871, experienced the glorious resurrection from the "natural body," and entered the realm of eternal bliss to join the happy throng of angels in a never ending progression, through a world of spiritual being, rendering praise and homage to that redeeming power that freed her from a body of sin and corruption.

My Jane has passed up to the shade of her Father. Along night of absence I'm left to deplore, O! when shall we meet in that haven of glory, Where parting and death shall meet us no more.

She did not believe that the "Spiritual body" Descended to moulder within the cold tomb, But rose all immortal to scenes vast in grandeur, Enshrining the soul in its splendor and bloom.

Nor did she desire that the "Natural body" Should ever unite with the spirit again, Retarding the lightning-wing'd speed of its flight, Through regions in space, light and knowledge to gain.

Endearingly kind was her gentle, pure nature, The erring she met in a spirit so mild, Her heart beat in sorrow for suffering nature, Her soul glow'd in ardor with love undimmed.

She has gone to the land where pure spirits surround, The land of the freed from this earthly domain, Expanded in themes of eternal progression, Where truth, love and justice triumphantly reign.

The grandest, the purest of all her affection, She poured in her husband's fond bosom, so dear, And knew no restraint to her soul's warm attachment, She cast upon him in her youthful career.

The dark pall of death overshadows his dwelling, His soul looking down into the merciless grave, In pity, Great Father! relieve his sore anguish, And pour out effusions of mercy to save.

The joys of contentment illumine not his passage, The night-side of Nature bedims his sad way, A fountain of tears cannot wash out his sorrow, For death led the way with merciless way.

Farwell my lov'd Jane! becom friend and companion, Thou hast left me to roam all alone in this land, Bright angels do hail thy reception in Heaven, With anthems and praises to God and the Lamb.
